'Godspell' cast to tour England this summer

by Barbara Fink

The MSSD cast of "Godspell" will give encore presentations of the play it originally performed last spring when it tours England for four weeks this

Tim McCarty, an instructor in the Performing Arts Department at MSSD and the show's producer/director, said that the cast was invited to England to help demonstrate the abilities and talents of deaf persons. "People are uplifted by the show, inspired. The audience has a great time. Administrators can then open discussions with educators and ask what they can do to change attitudes," he said.

The group will fly to London July 14 and spend two weeks touring southern England. Cherry Granville, head of Career Education at the Yorkshire School for the Deaf in Doncaster, and Daphne Payne, founder of the National Youth Theatre of the Deaf in London, are currently arranging appearances by the MSSD performers at summer arts festivals. The group will then travel north to put on a performance of "Godspell" at the International Congress on Deafness taking place in Manchester Aug. 4-7.

The tour group of 35 includes the entire original acting cast, seven faculty members and community members who provide the production's voice-overs. Gary Johnson, who voiced a part of the play, passed away last spring shortly after the show closed. The European production is being dedicated to him.

McCarty decided to use "Godspell" because it is uplifting, positive and encourages audience participation. It travels well, needing only one set and a small cast, he said. Performers rely heavily on mime and gesture, making it ideal for international audiences.

Granville is coordinating an exchange program between her school and MSSD. Students there are building the sets for the production and two of them will join the tour as crew members. A visit by several Yorkshire students to MSSD to attend classes and learn about local culture is being planned for next spring.

The MSSD group will stay at the YMCA in Wimbledon and the Yorkshire School for the Deaf.

To help raise money, an "Oldies but Goodies" party was held April 4 at the Field House. Tax-deductible contributions can also be sent to Terry Baird, Box 18, MSSD. All proceeds will benefit the tour and Performing Arts Department.

Gallaudet actress gets star treatment during visit to area elementary school

by Barbara Fink

Gallaudet senior Judy Pratt and Jo Tracy of the Theatre Arts Department caused quite a stir when they visited Glebe Elementary School in Arlington, VA, March 8.

To the sixth grade students there, Pratt is Sally Ruth, one of the characters on the educational television series "The Voyage of the Mimi."

The students watched the series in class as part of an educational package developed to teach science and math skills to elementary school children. The series also aired on public television last fall.

Each half hour program in the series is divided into two fifteen-minute components. The first segment is an episode in an adventure drama about scientists and their research assistants who are studying whales from aboard ship. That segment is followed by a documentary which highlights a subject introduced in the dramatic segment.

It was after seeing a documentary episode about Gallaudet that Patricia Hammond, one of the children's teachers, suggested calling the College to see if Pratt was still a student here.

"The children felt very close to the film's characters," she stated. "After finding out that Judy was real, it kept their interest."

Although this was the first time most of the children had met a hearing impaired person, Hammond stressed that that was not the reason Pratt was invited to the school.

"The main thing was that someone would want to come and meet them. They were spellbound and nervous because a TV star was coming, and asked me repeatedly if I was sure she would really come."

Pratt, along with Tracy, who had accompanied her to Maine and Massachusetts to film the series, spoke to the children about how the series was made. Pratt also spoke about her background, interests and future plans. The class saved the final episode of "Voyage of the Mimi" so they could watch it with Pratt and Tracy.

Afterwards they shared a cake decorated with a ship donated by the school's PTA. The children presented Pratt with an engraved desk set and gave both Pratt and Tracy flowers.

For Pratt, the visit was an opportunity to help the students understand both deafness and how television shows are made. "It was nice for me to see what the children didn't know about deaf people and the film itself. I think when they see deaf people now they will be more comfortable with them.

I was nervous about meeting them, too, until I saw the large 'Welcome, Judy' sign they had hung in the window," she said.

Most of the students asked how the film was made, but one boy did ask Pratt if her hands ever got tired from signing. "Do your lips ever get tired?" she asked.

Pratt ended the visit by signing 41 autographs—one for each student in the class.

The school videotaped the visit. Dorothy Knowlton, helping teacher for science in Arlington County, will use the tape to give presentations to other schools which are considering buying the series.

Japanese visitors observe College's programs, facilities

Two educators from Japan visited campus recently to observe Gallaudet's programs and facilities as they prepare to establish a college for deaf students at a university in their country.

Isao Miura, currently vice president of the University of Tsukuba, and Tetsuu Kurokawa, a math and physics professor, visited the campus March 10 and 11. Miura will become president of a two-year college for deaf students and Kurokawa will direct a similar program for blind students.

"This is the first program of its kind in Japan," said Marta Martinez, an assistant at the International Center on Deafness. "Hearing impaired students who pass the requirements for admission may be mainstreamed into regular university programs, but most hearing impaired people receive vocational training and do not attend college."

Miura and Kurokawa visited Gallaudet at the invitation of Shigeyuki Tsuzuki, who is one of Gallaudet's international interns. Upon his return to Japan, Tsuzuki will join the program as an administrator. They hope to set up a Gallaudet extension center at the university.

While at Gallaudet, Miura and Kurokawa toured the television studio, computer center and MSSD. The new program will borrow MSSD's open classroom concept.

Miura and Kurokawa also met during their visit with faculty members from the physics and computer departments and briefly with Provost John Schuchman. Jerald Jordan, director of Admiscontinued on page 4

Summer program receives award

The North American Association of Summer Sessions chose a Gallaudet summer 1984 special program as the recipient of the Creative and Innovative Award in its non-credit division.

The program, entitled "NEH Institute on Foreign Language and Cross-Cultural Studies for Hearing Impaired High School Students" was directed by Carole N Frankel, an assistant professor in the Romance Languages Department.

The program was designed to sensitize the 30 participants—educators of deaf students and foreign language teachers in mainstream programs—to the audiological, psychological and sociological aspects of deafness and to train the participants in the methodologies of foreign language instruction. Phone features aid in making calls

Every day, people calling campus lines are frustrated by busy signals and unanswered phones. Michael Southers, telecommunications manager, suggests using the following features of the phone system to increase the rate of completed calls:

• Call Forwarding—Busy/Don't Answer: This sends calls to another extension if a line is busy or not answered by the third ring. To activate this feature, dial *3 and wait to hear a dial tone. Then dial the four-digit extension to receive the calls. A confirmation tone of four beeps indicates the calls are being forwarded. If the receiving extension is busy or already forwarding calls, the system will not accept the request. Clear the receiving line or send calls to a different extension.

• Call Forwarding—All Calls: When this feature is activated, calls are forwarded on the first ring. The sending phone will give one short ring each time a call is rerouted. To activate, dial *2, wait for the dial tone, then dial the four-digit number of the receiving extension

To clear both call forwarding features, dial #2.

Another feature known as Automatic

Callback will keep checking a line that is busy. When the line clears, the system will ring the caller's phone, using three short rings. If the caller's phone is answered, it then dials the extension that was busy. The system will continue to try both lines for two hours if either remains busy. To activate this feature, dial *5, wait for the dial tone, then dial the four-digit extension to be called. Dial #5 to deactivate.

All of these features can be used on single line phone sets (those with no buttons and only one line). On multiline sets, use these features only on the phones that actually ring and on the lines that ring on that phone.

Every campus phone has a feature known as automatic queuing. When outside lines are busy, the system sets up a "queue" of people waiting for them. After dialing an 8 or 9, a beep confirmation tone indicates that this feature has been activated. Hang up; when an outside line is free, the system will signal with three short rings. Outside calls can then be dialed without using the 8 or 9 prefix. On a multi-line set, if the phone rings and no one is on the line, it is usually because someone in the office activated the automatic queuing feature.

Crimebusters

Emergency alarm system

Quick notification to the campus police in the event of an emergency can mean the difference between a criminal escaping or being apprehended; in getting prompt medical attention to an injured person and in summoning fire equipment to the campus in a timely manner.

The emergency telephone numbers for the Department of Safety and Security are x5555 (voice) and x5666 (TDD). The department's non-emergency number is x5563 (voice and TDD).

An outside emergency alarm system is in operation for persons to use should an emergency arise on campus. The system has 46 alarm locations located primarily near main entrances to buildings and in most parking lots.

The department has published a brochure explaining the purpose of the emergency alarm system, how it works and the alarm locations on campus. Anyone interested in receiving a copy of the brochure should contact the Department of Safety and Security at x5563.

Kappa Delta Pi initiates members

The second annual New Member Initiation Ceremony for the Gallaudet chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, the national honorary society in education, was held in the Red Room of the College Dining Hall Feb. 28.

The Pi Rho Chapter initiated 68 new members, including five undergraduate education majors; 12 faculty from KDES, MSSD and the School of Education and Human Services; and 51 graduate students from the education, educational technology, educational administration, counseling and school psychology programs.

The ceremony was led by the current officers of the society chapter: Mark Goldfarb, president; Bruce Bailey, vice president; Frances Pesciotta, secretary; Norma-Jean Taylor, treasurer; and David Martin, an assistant professor in the Department of Education and chapter counselor. The four ideals of the society-science, service, fidelity to humanity and toil—were emphasized in the ritual for future educators.

The special guest speaker for the evening's program was Keith Geiger, vice president of the National Education Association, the nation's largest professional association for teachers.

All-day conference planned April 24

An all-day conference on equity and excellence in education will be held at Gallaudet on April 24. Open to faculty, staff and students, the conference will be co-sponsored by Gallaudet College, Project PRO-CEED and American University, Project EFFECT

Conference presentations will include:

"The Campus Climate: A Chilly One for Women" by Bernice Sandler, executive director of Project on the Status and Education of Women (Association of American Colleges);

• "From the Classroom to the Boardroom: Closing the Communication Gender Gap" by Myra and David Sadker, co-directors of Project EFFECT, The American University School of Education; and · "Cold Cash: Is That the Bottom Line?" by Marita Danek, director of the Rehabilitation Counseling Program in the School of Education and Human Services at Gallaudet.

The conference pre-registration fee of $5 includes all materials, lunch and refreshments. For more information, contact Barbara Bodner-Johnson or Marilyn Sass-Lehrer in the Department of Education at x5400 (voice and TDD).

Speaking on the topic "The Impact of the Reform Movement on the Teaching Profession," Geiger outlined the immediate changes expected in the structure of the teaching profession as a result of the recent national reports criticizing American education. For example, he said, the concept of creating "career ladders" within school teaching may somewhat resemble the ranks found in university professorships, and the controversial topic of merit pay for teachers may become a positive or negative influence, dependent upon adequate funding and fair evaluation standards.

The national Kappa Delta Pi Society was founded in 1911 to honor those students preparing to enter educational fields who demonstrated academic excellence through superior grades. The Gallaudet chapter was established last year and now has 110 membersstudents, faculty and current school teachers.

Anyone interested in more information about the society, its purposes and the criteria for invitation to membership should contact any of the current officers or David Martin in the Department of Education, x5400.

Spanish Speaking Seminar attracts 23 professionals

by Amanda Patton

Twenty-three individuals from 13 Latin American countries participated in the International Center on Deafness's annual Spanish-Speaking Seminar. This year's seminar, which ran Feb. 4-22, focused on current trends in the education of deaf persons. For the second year, the entire seminar was translated/ interpreted into Spanish by students from Georgetown University's Division of Translation and Interpretation.

According to Lou Brown of the International Center on Deafness, this year marked the first time Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, Paraguay and Venezuela sent representatives to the program. She said that while most of the seminar participants are professionals in deaf education, this year's attendees also included administrators, an audiologist and a social worker.

The three-week program featured tours of Gallaudet facilities, observations at KDES and MSSD, lectures, workshops, panel discussions and personal appointments. At evening sessions the participants themselves made presentations in which they shared their experiences, discussed deaf education in their countries, and moved toward establishing a communication network through which they can share resources.

During their stay, participants also visited the Smithsonian Institution, the Alexander Graham Bell Association and the Camelot School in Fairfax, VA

At the seminar's final banquet, held in "Ole Jim," guests included participants and presenters, members of the Gallaudet community and representatives from the embassies of Honduras, Chile, Venezuela and Mexico. Drama students from MSSD provided the evening's entertainment and seminar participants received "Letters of Recognition.

Students and teachers alike enjoyed spring weather as some classes, like this one, moved outside.

Recreation Office plans summer programs

The Office of Intramurals and Campus Recreation will offer the Gallaudet Workout, speedwalking and racquetball clinics this summer.

A flyer giving details will be distributed on campus April 15, and the six-week sessions will begin April 29. Two additional sessions of the "Gallaudet Workout" will be offered in the summer. All sessions will last for six weeks; an extra class has been added for persons who want to work out on Fridays.

Registration will be held in the Intramurals Office at Hughes Gym during the week of April 22, from noon to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

A speedwalking demonstration will be given April 11 at 12:30 p.m. as part of "Summer Fest."

MSSD teams finish winter season

As the 1984-85 winter season drew to a close, MSSD's athletic teams were able to look back on the year with satisfaction. A wrap-up of the school's winter competition follows.

Swimming

MSSD swimmers finished the year by hosting the Third Annual MSSD Invitational meet which included nine boys' teams and nine girls' teams. Both the boys' and girls' teams ended the meet in fourth place. Nancy Cantu, Heather Hallock, Pinky Aiello and Javier Torres turned in outstanding performances for the Eagle swimmers. Nancy Cantu captured both the 100-meter butterfly and the 200-meter individual medley, breaking school records in both events. Heather Hallock finished second in the 100-meter freestyle. Pinky Aiello won the girls' diving event and Javier Torres placed second in the boys' diving, missing first by less than half a point.

Girls' basketball

The girls' basketball team ended the season with an 11-9 record, finishing third in the ESDAA Tournament held at the Maryland School for the Deaf. Linda Hartzog and Sonya Fortun were named to the All-Tournament first team while Adrienne Peterson was named to the second team. The junior varsity team completed the season with a 5-5 record.

Boys' basketball

For the Eagle cagers the 1984-85 season had high and low notes. At times during the Tri-State League competition, the MSSD team was hampered by injuries and probations and ended the year with an 11-12 record. The junior varsity team finished with a 10-10 season.

Wrestling

The Eagle wrestlers had another strong year, winning three tournaments. In December, the team triumphed at the Mason Dixon Tournament held at the North Carolina School for the Deaf. The Eagles were also victorious in tournaments at St. Anselm's School in Washington and at the ESDAA at the New Jersey School. Champions at the ESDAA meet included Jim Lecbrecht, Brad Gutshall, Robert Stalker, Jeff White, Bobby Reimer (MVP), Barry Barron, Toselli Silvestri and Jimmy Gardner. Toselli Silvestri ended the season undefeated (27-0). This summer, Jeff White, Bobby Reimer, Barry Barron, Toselli Silvestri and Eagle Assistant Coach Todd Silvestri will represent the United States in the 1985 World Games for the Deaf in Los Angeles.

Group examines risk management

The Risk Management Task Force was established several years ago to help protect the campus community from loss and liability. This is accomplished by identifying potential hazards and by making recommendations for the prevention of such hazards or the reduction of future losses.

Members of the task force represent different areas of the College's organizational structure. Now serving on the task force are: Sharon Hayes, Student Life; Anne Deggendorf, Continuing Education; Ed Glenn, Safety and Security; Fred Kendrick, Transportation; Peter Goodman, Facilities; Susan Raley-Lyon, Student Affairs; Michael Southers, Telecommunications; Lucy Trivelli, Research; Charles Mann, Business Services; Ronald Sutcliffe, Property; Homer Billups, Maintenance and Operations; Pam Zuckerman, Pre-College; and Elaine Vance, Risk Management.

Anyone who would like to call to the attention of the task force any problems or areas of concerns is urged to do so by contacting any of the task force members.

The task force has set as its main goal making Gallaudet a safe place to work. For example, one of the group's concerns is the number of reported injuries on campus. From Oct. 1, 1984 through Jan. 31, 1985, there were 120 injuries to faculty, staff and students. Many of those injuries could have been prevented by taking the proper precautions, according to task force members.

Summer special program wins award continued from page have traditionally been waived from foreign language programs for a variety of reasons, including lack of appropriate programming, inaccessible materials and a lack of teachers trained to teach this student population.

Program activities included writing, pilot testing and publication of French and Spanish textbooks for hearing impaired high school students.

Participants were given support to become regional resource teachers in establishing foreign language programs in their schools, programs and regions. This was the first effort to develop materials and to encourage the inclusion of foreign language and cross cultural studies in the curriculum of high school programs for hearing impaired students through a national training program.

A grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) covered transportation, room and board and materials for all participants.

Thirty-eight faculty members from Gallaudet and two off-campus speakers gave presentations during the two-week summer institute. The program's logistics were coordinated by the Office of Extension and Summer Programs in the College for Continuing Education.
